

BIOFACH 2019

Heliopolis University students and staff members participated in BIOFACH 2019 in Nuremberg, Germany. BIOFACH is the world's largest trade fair for organic food and agriculture. It is held each year in February and brings together around 2,950 exhibitors and more than 50,000 visitors. Heliopolis University pharmacy students were glad to represent their university in the exhibition. They also went to support SEKEM as Heliopolis University's founding institution and one of the largest exhibitors in BIOFACH 2019.

Heliopolis University was concerned to use such experience of the broad organically produced food spectrum, update the students and the staff knowledge on the current developments in this area, and meet interesting pioneers, activists, innovators, and networkers. Thus, this is the ideal setting to improve their knowledge in nutrition and health, to learn what potential organic food offers for public health, to highlight the contribution of organic to a more sustainable life.

https://youtu.be/cy_dvmQJZ_s

Read their full story at our website at

<https://www.hu.edu.eg/heliopolis-university-at-biofach-2019/>